CLEVELAND MUSEUM OFFERS
POETRY READING BY TOWLE

On Sunday, November 12 at 3:00 p.m., The Cleveland Museum of Art is sponsering a poetry reading by Tony Towle, a highly distinguished young poet from New York. Mr. Towle began writing poetry in 1960 and since then has received warm praise from critics and has been given many awards in recognition of his talent. In 1970, he won the Frank O'Hara Award for his striking collection of poems, North. Since 1964 he has been secretary of Universal Limited Art Editions which is directed by Tatyana Grosman. In addition, he has worked closely with a number of artists, such as Lee Bontecou and Larry Rivers.

His poem, The Works of Li Po, was recently published in the New Yorker. There is no admission charge and the public is welcome.
